

This week, due to a change in the game's setting, we had to rethink everything about the story. We have changed from two male and female protagonists with two different story backgrounds and trends to two male and female protagonists with the same general story lines. It was changed from an Asian woman and a man of Mexican descent to a man and woman of Mexican descent. We also discussed the character that Sylvia created using Ai. Not only the expressions that are more in line with the identity of the hero are discussed, but also the characters that are more suitable for the plot are selected. Next week, we will outline the plot of the branch line and complete the production. Our game is being completed bit by bit and we are looking forward to the final production result.
